The representative of the People living with Disability (PLWD) was not left out of the consultation

This historic gathering was also graced by representatives of Non Governmental Organisations (NGOs), Artisans, and other Civil Society actors within the State.

In his welcoming address, the State Commissioner for Budget and Economic Planning, Hon. John Adeniyi Farinto said the objective of the Town Hall Meeting is to produce an all inclusive budget by consulting with the people and gathering their inputs into the development of government's programme and project. Stressing "having a people oriented budget has always been a priority of the current administration in State. A government that is run with the understanding and inputs of the people is a practical expression of transparency and good governance".

Hon Farinto restated that the development agenda of the administration are hinged on four pillars of Economy, Security Health and Education which is designed to improved the welfare of the people. The strategies to achieve these are encapsulated in the Accelerated Development Road Map produced by this administration. The commissioner also revealed that there are on- going effort to produce a 20 year State development plan to put Oyo in the path of sustainable development and make it a profitable investment destination in Nigeria.

Finally, the commissioner assured all the people that their inputs will count in the development programme and projects in the State. In his words "I therefore call on our community leaders and representatives here present to come up with strategic programmes and articulate initiative as well as suggestions that will take our beloved state to her pacesetting mode.

In his goodwill message, the Special adviser to Governor on Economic Matters, Dr Adetunji Babatunde narrated a scenario of a community request to lay emphasis on Needs Assessment and Consultation as a basis for an inclusive and meaningful budget and plan anywhere in the world. He thanked the governor for approved the plan to produce a 20 year development plan for the State.

In his goodwill message, the Director General Of Development Agenda for Western Nigeria (DAWN), Mr S. Oyeleye emphasised the need for budget process to be more participatory and implored the government to ensure that Citizen participation does not end at conception stage but rather they should be involved throughout the budget cycle and the Evaluation stage. He posited that the bottom-top approach the administration is currently embracing will promote accountability, transparency and development in the State.

Immediately after this, the Executive Governor of the State, Engr. Seyi Makinde was ushered in to give his keynote remark, the governor stated that during his electioneering campaign, he took down all the needs of the people and according to him, he consulted regularly to guide his interventions and actions. Based on this, the administration developed the four point agenda namely: Education, Security, Health and Agriculture for the State.

The Governor, who emphasised realistic budgeting bemoaned the over blotted budget he met when assumed the mantle of leadership in the State. According to him, he had to accost the State House of Assembly for the downward review of the operating budget. Such development, Engr Makinde stressed has always been responsible for the abysmal performance of the successive budgets in the State which is between 35% to 37 % performance rates.

His Excellency disclosed that the IGR of the State has improved by N400 million as at October 2019. He promised to raise the IGR of the State to N4Billion by the end of 2020, but quickly added that he did not intend to increase taxation rather he would block all leakages and widen the tax net of the State.

Finally, the Governor assured the citizens that their contributions will count in 2020 budget of the State; therefore they should be willing to propose projects that will address the yearning needs of the people at the grassroots.

At this stage the floor was opened to Citizens for the presentation of their various needs for consideration in 2020 budget.
